 PVD - technical coating - PVD is a modern method of surface treatment that guarantees durability, attractive colors, resistance, and unique quality. It represents the surface's resistance to corrosion and rough handling. In a vacuum, micro particles are evaporated from a solid material and applied to the coated material under high pressure. As a result, they perfectly replicate the surface, and the color tones are not just a foil or a coating, but they are part of the metal. There is no risk of the color peeling off the surface due to scratches. Additionally, the method is considered very environmentally friendly, and the surface layer is hypoallergenic.*
